borrower lose the whole Principal; he is obliged to make it good to him that lends it, but if only part be lost, the remainder is employ'd to regain it. And it is usual with the lender to forbear the Borrower, till he perceives him fraudulent, Careless, or Unfortunate.

And because the sinne of Usury is so notorious among the Jews, the Moors believe that for it they are oppressed of God, and live Exiles from their own Canaan. But it is easy to observe a sort of Antipathie between these people, notwithstanding that they are conjoynd in neighbourhood, commerce, & in very many rites both civil and Religious. But the contempt is reciprocal, for if the Moor by way of Proverb say, As deceitful as a Jew, the Jew repays, as unbelieving as a Moor. And this enmity I remarked in a Barabár of my Acquaintance, who observing the Jews very much frequent my lodging, he very roundly reprov'd that Conversation, and angrily told me, That the Jews were born to cheat both the Moor and the Christian, that he was assured that they were not descended of Adam, but that they were
