- Peregrinus (18)

"It was on every body's lips, a the philosopher who had been banished in the Cappadocian war the day after his death for his frankness and extreme freedom, so that in this respect he approached Anaxagoras, Protagoras and anyone else who had been in a similar treatment."

- Democritus : 3

(3) : From his boyhood, he fell... as in love with philosophy, ... and committing himself unreservedly to liberty and happiness, was skilled in reading a straight, now unimpeachable life and is living an example to all who saw and heard him, by his good
