Tome: Hanway
The defects of justice.
1775.

Commentaire de l'ouvrage Bridewells. 333

H. remarque sur Bridewell le passage de nos prisons de la débauche à la vertu une autre vertu.

64. "The prisoners being cleaned, clothed, fed, and instructed, might... be restored to the world as to answer the great ends of justice and mercy."

§ - on dira que de ces établissements mal faits on s'attendrait à ce que Bridewell - "what! To feed hard, to suffer confinement in solitude, for an uncertain time; to be disciplined in the school of virtue and religion, in which they were never admitted? No, sir: solitude is too terrible to them: it will never permit escape "would be wrought upon by the force of conscience."

65 : "The use of an apartment for each prisoner will prove the only effectual means of calling forth reflection, and preventing dissipation and idleness.
Such a situation only can furnish the means of admonition where the attention cannot be called off, by any plea of shame, suggested by bad company, or dissipation of thought, which ever must invade such wretched beings."

Il ne s'agit pas de punir, mais de réformer (sans violence).

66. Chagall character Amitevi 12 mid 1900s, celebrated in 1908 on rue de la Harpe, ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~area~~ Even a Chagall quote: "They should learn that cleanliness will be imposed to them as a virtue, and rewarded with money."

67. 4. must demand a better quality, persistent governing in 21st century. "Give them ~~the~~ a habit of industry in useful employment...
I take for granted they will gladly work when they are taught to consider how their lives depend on it; and they must now lift up the void, which solitude would otherwise render dreadful."

- "If they acquire a reputation for industry rich and good behaviour, their confinement may be shortened at the will of magistrates"

- "This confinement, which I call an immediate space between two worlds may qualify them for either"

- on dire quality but let despair: modern magistrate "governmental by mission" by the noxious effluvia of their own atmosphere" demand much more than this.

4. people must "is the reservation of subject to the state - It is the essence of the guardianship of the laws - It is the defence of the lives and property of innocents - The paradigm of liberty - The means of eternal happiness to our fellow creatures - And... the everlasting welfare of our nation"
