La loi de 1786 sur les T. F.
en Pennsylvanie:
reformer le delinquant.

Le 15 Sept 86, 2 loi de l'Etat de Pennsylvanie

"Whereas, it is the wish of every good government to reclaim rather than to destroy, and it being apprehended that the cause of human corruption proceed more from the impunity of crimes than from the moderate ~~house~~ of punishment, directed by the laws now in force, as well for capital as for other inferior offences do not answer the principle ends of society in punishing them, to wit, to correct and reform offenders, and to produce such strong ~~and~~ ~~to produce such the~~ impression in the minds of others as to deter them from committing the like offences, which it is conceived may be ~~the~~ better effected by continued hard labors, publicly and disgracefully imposed on persons convicted of them, not only in the manner pointed out  by the constitution, but in such of cities and towns, and across the highways of the open country and other public works."
