Too happy, my dear Sir, to place my library &
if need be, myself at your service. You will receive the books sometime tomorrow & I have noed your young ladies the trouble they would probably have had, of putting working jackets on them, which in truth are only travelling blouses.
When you shall have done

With them you will have no trouble in leaving them at Mr. Murray's so abundantly that for me.

Mrs. Barrow is very much obliged to you
to write to you herself in two or three days, when she hears
from another friend
who was also commissioned to make similar enquiries.

her by the contraction
of Elizabeth, Bessie.
When I told her that you had asked after her, she desired me to send you "her kindest regards" - her own words; she is a dear intelligent little thing. I hope your young ladies will soon come to us - We shall all be glad to make their acquaintance - I presume
it

it will not be disagreeable to them to occupy one bed - our english beds
are wide, & you know that we are already a pretty numerous tribe.

I hope to hear from you tomorrow or next day about the Leaves Retrospective & M. Tar-cheraine. Blunzani, I see, calls him a dynas-tie, but he seems to have got his papers from the Provisional Government; but, in this latter case, I do not quite understand his pub.

which gives a description him much. Pray who is Tisot, & what object can Taschereau have in publishing that letter?

Is Tisot a candidate that he wishes to defeat, or an employe that he wants to have dismissed - I cannot find whether Taschereau is of

of the assembly - I pray answer me on all these points - I think the Reuse very very important to yours & the King's cases, but there may be a dépense des écrits.

Can you tell me how the fact is as to Blanqui's "délation". I dare say he says truly that it was produced for the occasion, but I cannot think that it was forged - M. Duchatel could

My letters tell me that there is like a deepening restoration in 6 months, & M. Scheer's Minister. Also there will another Revolution in six weeks after. It is odd that the only person who has a real, substantial personal feeling in his favour is the ~~early~~ one whom no body will avow.
I am a Henricus for no other reason than that I think that the best chance

France. The people will never think they may not overturn a placard, a power they have created - if they make the Count de Paris King, they can unmake him - as they did his grand father. - Not were not for that unfortunate abolition tion I think L. P. might be restored, & his quasi-legitima-go far to satisfy me - but the elected boy cannot stand wherever the electors change their mind. Ever yours
