My dear Sir,

I am very sorry for the cause of the interruption of your journey to Scotland, but the weather is so detestable that I think you have had no great loss - but as you did not go to St Andrews, I wish you had happened to fix yourself nearer to this - We might have seen something of each other: and our sea bathing is as good as on the coast of Dorset - but if you are near your friends at Bitteringham they will no doubt amuse you better than we could in this neighbourhood, where there is in bad weather no amusement at all. I have abandoned the intention of treating the Rev. Put. in the next number for 3 reasons. 1st I want more certainty as to its history. 2nd We shall probably have some thing of the same kind to handle in consequence of the Enquête but 3rd because I have found a better subject for present use in the continuation of Jerome Paturot - which has exceedingly surprised & interested me & is a very serious book in a very trivial form.

Now comes Louis Reybaud who was of the National Journal & is now of the National Avenir to treat the Revolution & Republic de haut en bas as he does. The spirit of his book is exactly the same as that of my two last articles - in point of fact they might have been written by the same pen.

the Republic with more boldness to contrast it disadvantageously

I only speak as yet of the first
vol. which I have just finished; & when I show my letter, I shall proceed with the second. Of course you will have seen it. Tell me what you think of it & any thing you know of the author.

agreeing as I do with all you say, I cannot especially in your observation on the "pusillanimité de tout le monde" (except Jerome Paturot). The enquiry will be an abortion - they will not altogether suppress, but they will garble the papers; they will try to suppress the evidence of the long conspiracy against the king, & the proofs that Barbès Blancqui-Sobrier, Cuspidiere are prosecuted & persecuted by Marrast & Marie & Senard & Lecurth (their former investigators & accomplices) for a consistency in principles which the latter have betrayed. The trial about the affair of Disqueurs-Tout is also very interesting: all this will produce another explosion in Paris & then - ? Yours sincerely
Whorpe
