My dear Sir

9th June 49

Thank you for your note
- I thought that Mr. Bailew could hardly have ventured on the indecorum attributed to him.

Is there any explanation to be had of the strange result of the election for Paris - How came Ledru Rollin to be elected by 130,000 when there were 148,000 who did not vote for him? How strangely the votes must have been scattered - then if Rollin his two ~~competitors~~ friends Lafont

Mr Baichol couldst attain the head of the poll now as it that he did not carry his whole tail - I should have thought that all who voted for Baichol would have no scruple in voting for Flocon. And then that another Submarine was Murract should have got their heads above water as he wishes me.

I have a dozen of their ballotting papers which show a deplorable want of concert in the Moderates;
and

and it seems many that imagined
Moderate been near the poll.

At the Garden time the absence
from 2
Saturday
Ever
