Hybridge 31. Dec^r
1857.

Dear Sir

Will you forward
the enclosed little,
book to Henriette.
I think of her in her
busy retreat with
the greatest admiration & sympathy. So much
for varied instruction
& enlarged minds making girls unfit for
domestic duties!
You & I never believed
in such perverse nonsense. But I thank

every young woman
who gives a thorough & striking demonstration
to it. H. K. has been here & read us your letter.
It was not necessary
for us. but it showed
the mendacity to have
exceeded belief.
I was asked to induce
H. K. to speak favorably of the book. "On such been addressed - as you may think."

I hope you got the little brochure on Indian affairs W. I sent you
by post. These letters

are very highly thought of here. They are written by a man
of good sense, integrity, & kindly feelings,
perfectly familiar with his subject. I think as you say, that our difficulties are only now beginning to reveal themselves. Yet one thing is demonstrated - the natives, however they may dislike us, feel that they have need of us - "graviora metuentur." Men yet living remember Sacajawes, Pindarres, & all the varieties of persocious brigands who ravaged the country.

Now farewell, dear
Sir, dear & honoured friend. What can I have to wish for ^{you} in the coming year that you have not - peace & honour, love & reverence, 'all that should accompany old age, & help to conceal the changes which time makes
around us all.
May these wishes be
yours as long as you
can enjoy them.
Ever yours faithfully
Shutrin

But don't forget to write to all
