which you have named the character of that remarkable man anticipated with singular felicity the Defense which has just appeared from his own papers. It is important not only to read his own, but to England that his character should be placed before the world in its true light. There did man make greater or more deliberate sacrifices for what he believed the good of his country, for his own power, which might seem to be his aim and object. He was called last known villain his own self.
How few could offer what that man in his own high-mindedness, to his only good, which appeared self-interest, or even his own. Allow me to send out a brief copy of the page. In Page 257 you have printed that Dudley Stuart for Lord Dudley.

In two further men could be seen within each other. You will have an opportunity of correcting this error you persons at next year's concluding article: and, I venture, you will excuse my indication of the mistake -
From a letter, which I had the pleasure of receiving from your son, I was led to hope that we should have the pleasure of seeing him in England, and talking over our common ground "American" & that that he has been suffering from an attack of Scarlet fever, from which he has happily recovered.
But his mother, as well as for
